EIGHTY YEARS OF COMMUNITY THEATRE IN ANNISQUAM

By A— M—.

We stand corrected.

A subscriber from Annisquam tells us that all this talk about a Community Theatre being a new idea makes the old residents of Annisquam smile. The idea is as old in 'Squam, he says, as the 'Squam coach. He don't know but it is as old as Annisquam itself.

We hastened, therefore, to take a look at Annisquam and to set ourselves right on dates we made a call on a charming lady; one of "the Lanes." Sitting in her beautifully proportioned parlor with its white shuttered French windows that used, in the old days, to command the full sweep to the Coffin's Beach Dunes, we learned some really astonishing facts.

At the time of the Civil War the residents of the village were no less industrious in working for the soldiers than they have been in the recent war. As one method of making money the young people formed a dramatic club and in 1863 they gave their first play, followed by a charade. It was distinctly a community affair for the charade was written by Miss Lane and John William Day wrote the play. This last fact is interesting because it shows how singularly advanced Annisquam was in another direction for Mr. Day was the grandson of Parson Bradford of the Orthodox Church, the only church in Annisquam. Considering the narrow religious views of that time this is remarkable, and should prepare us to find that in 1811 Parson Leonard of that church came under the influence of John Murray of Gloucester, and he, with his whole congregation, went over to Universalism. But that is another story.

Once banded together, the club continued to give two or three plays a year frequently written by its members, the proceeds going to the church or toward some village improvement. The Annisquam actors became famous around the Cape and the audiences came down from Gloucester and over from Rockport. Just as interest in the organization began to flag, Mr. George Lane re-inspired it and in 1875 it adopted, or re-adopted, its present name, "The Annisquam Dramatic Club."

Of the 350 residents of Annisquam, the present club enrolls about twenty-five. It seldom drops below this number and rarely rises above it for many of the

UNCANNY EVENTS OF THE COLONIAL DAYS THEME OF POET WHITTIER

OLD BABSON HOMESTEAD, PIGEON COVE

The "Old Witch House" at Pigeon Cove, which stands near the main road somewhat beyond the Seamans estate going toward Folly Cove, is one of the noted houses of this section. Weather beaten, deeply shaded by an old orchard it looks its age. It is said to have been erected about 1680. Probably the original house was much smaller and was added to from time to time as family necessities demanded.

The popularly accepted story is that a widow Babson, a resident of Salem, was accused of witchcraft and her sons, fearing that her fate would be the same as meted out to others in Salem town, secretly conveyed her through the woods to a boat near the Beverly shore and sailed down to this uninhabited part of Cape Ann where they built their house and sheltered their mother until the storm of delusion had spent its force.

However, the chilly facts of history shatter this tradition. Isabel Babson, a midwife, came from Salem with her son James about 1640 and settled in the central part of the town in what is now Main street, her son settling at Good Harbor beach. His descendants worked down toward Sandy Bay and established a branch of the family at Pigeon Cove. Isabel and her son James came here fifty years before the witchcraft delusion in Salem in 1692. She died in 1661, thirty-one years before the witchcraft epidemic.

Nevertheless, there is no doubt but the Babson's were mixed up as central figures in the witchcraft delusion as far as it concerned Cape Ann, the details of which have been reported with great fidelity by Rev. Mr. Mather and published in his "Magnalia."

In July, 1692, the account goes on to state that Ebenezer Babson and others of his family heard noises every night as of persons running about the house. One night, while returning home late Ebenezer saw two men come out of the house and hide themselves in a cornfield. He could hear them talking and heard one say "The man of the house is come now else we might have taken the house."

The entire family were thoroughly alarmed and immediately set out for the garrison house which was near, followed by the two men. They were seen prowling about the garrison for several nights following.

Ebenezer said he afterwards saw two men who looked like Frenchmen and at another time six. The neighbors formed a party and went in pursuit. Ebenezer reported that he overtook two and tried to shoot but his gun missed fire. Shortly after he saw three men, one of whom had on a white waistcoat. He fired, on them bringing down the three at one shot. On approaching, however, they suddenly rose and ran into the woods.

One was surrounded and escape was considered impossible. Ebenezer shot at him near a fence and the man dropped but when Babson came to the spot he had disappeared.

Afterwards, several were seen lurking about the garrison and much discussion was heard in an unknown tongue in a swamp nearby. Ebenezer was fired upon while on his way to the harbor to carry the news. The unwelcome visitors were supposed to be French and Indians of whom the settlers were in great dread at the time. Finally the people became so wrought upon that they sent to Ipswich for help and sixty armed men came from that town to protect the people from these supernatural marauders. These apparently were immune according to the veracious testimony of several of the inhabitants who deposed that they fired at them without result. Furthermore, they left no footprints even in the soft and miry places over which they fled! In a short time the excitement was over and Ebenezer retired to his home undisturbed.

There were then two garrisons in the town, the whole Cape being included in Gloucester, and one of them was near the Babson house. Tradition has always pointed out the house as the Witch House and so it is known by many today.

Whittier has woven these facts or fancies into a poem.

"From the hills of home forthlooking far beneath the tent-like span
Of the sky, I see the white gleam of the headland of Cape Ann
Well I know its coves and beaches to the ebb-tide glimmering down
And the white-walled hamlet children of its ancient fishing town.

Long has passed the summer morning and its memory waxes old
When along yon breezy headlands with a pleasant friend I strolled.
Ah! the autumn sun is shining and the ocean wind blows cool
And the golden-rod and aster blow around thy grave Rantoul.

With the memory of that morning by the summer sea I blend
A wild and wondrous story by the younger Mather penned.
Where the sea-waves back and forward hoarse with rolling pebbles ran
The garrison house stood watching on the gray rocks of Cape Ann.

On its windy site uplifting gabled roof and palisade
And rough walls of unhewn timber with the moonlight overlaid.
Before the deep-mouthed chimney dimly lit by dying brands
Twenty soldiers sat and waited with their muskets in their hands
On the rough-hewn oaken table the venison haunch was shared
And the pewter tankard circled slowly round from beard to beard.

Long they sat and talked together; talked of wizards Satan-sold
Of all ghostly sights and noises—signs and wonders manifold.
Of the specter-ship of Salem with the dead men in her shrouds
Sailing sheer above the water in the loom of morning clouds.

Of the marvellous valley hidden in the depths of Gloucester woods
Full of plants that love the summer—blooms of warmer latitudes
Where the Arctic birch is braided by the tropics flowery vines
And the white magnolia blossoms star the twilight of the pines.

Midnight came; from out the forest moved a dusky mass that soon
Grew to warriors plumed and painted grimly; marching in the moon.
"Ghosts or witches" said the captain "thus I foil the Evil One"
And he rammed a silver bullet from his doublet down his gun.

ARISTOCRATS DEFEAT

Feminine Followers of National Pastime Engage In Baseball Tourney at the Rockaway

Summer resorters about East Gloucester thronged to the baseball game between the feminine guests of the Rockaway on Monday, July 26.

The Artists, the challenging team, were defeated by the Aristocrats, a team composed of the less accomplished guests, in a game marked by tremendous enthusiasm and vociferous cheering. At the end of the fifth inning, when the game was called by the umpire Noyes on account of darkness, the score stood 18-8. Both teams, which had been practising for several days under the able direction of Manager Vognil for the artists and Manager Imlach for the Aristocrats, were in top notch form for the match. So severe had been the secret practice that several of the star players on both sides, unused to such masculine exercise, were laid out with Charley Horses and baseball fingers. Little Miss McKee who was substituted to fill in the depleted ranks of the Aristocrats held down first base with much skill, though she was only 12 and the youngest player in the game.

The Artists, led by Assistant Manager Snell, with a fox terrier for mascot, were first on the field, wearing white skirts and middie blouses and green artist's tams. The Aristocrats followed, gayly bedecked in their colors of orange and black, even to their mascot, a Yorkshire terrier.

The lineup was:

Artists: Miss Balfour, pitcher; Miss Allison, catcher; Mrs. Cartwright, 1st base; Miss Manon, 2d base; Miss Branson, 3rd base; Miss Vance, shortstop; Miss Atkins, fielder.

Aristocrats: Capt. Miss Forbes, pitcher; Miss R. Haas, catcher; Miss Mildred McKee, 1st base; Miss Hunting, 2nd base; Miss Sayre, 3rd base; Miss Hunt, shortstop; Miss MacGlashan, fielder.

The Artists, established a lead of two runs in the second inning but the following inning the Aristocrats, by their heavy batting took the lead, which they held to the end of the game. Guests and players joined in the snake dance to the hotel where large and expensive prizes were distributed to the winning team by Bishop Reese of Georgia, a guest of the hotel. The Bishop in his presentation speech touched upon the Amazon-like qualities of the new

THE NEW LEGION HOME

Historic Town Hall As It Will Appear When Transformed Into Permanent Headquarters For World War Veterans.

The drive for the new Gloucester Legion Building has revived for each of us an individual memory of the War. Those who spent the summer of 1918 on Cape Ann will well remember the time when the War was brought, literally, to our shores, and when one of our own boys—a citizen of Gloucester—helped to defend this region from probable panic and possible destruction, by attacking and driving away a U-boat which the Germans had sent over to raid the New England Coast. The U-boat—one of the most powerful ever built—had succeeded in penetrating within 3 miles of Cape Cod when it was attacked by a Seaplane in command of Ensign Eric Lingard of Annisquam. That was the only engagement of the War on this side of the Atlantic. Several shells from the U-boat struck land—the first time this coast has been under fire since the War of 1312.

Lingard lost his life in defense of this coast. He was just one of that honored company of Gloucester boys who did not come back. Yet his story belongs especially to Cape Ann because not only was his life largely lived in this region which he loved, but in the end it was directly given to the patrol of this coast and the defense of the Gloucester Fishing vessels.

There are many of us whose individual memories of the War include the daily whirring of his big Seaplane as he passed through our sky on his picket duty as one of the eight fliers who formed the only air-patrol from Cape Cod to Canada. These memories will link the spirit of the boy whose struggle came so close to us with the spirits of those other boys whose fight was far away, that we may grow better to understand the one great Spirit of the Legion.

At this time of the Legion Drive it seems fitting to recall the story of the first airplane to defend American Shores, and of the Gloucester Legion boy who was its pilot.

"On July 21st, 1918, a German 'Super U-Boat,' 250 feet long, and carrying both high-angle and anti-aircraft guns, attacked a string of barges off Chatham, Mass., and also shelled the mainland. The attack was made three miles off Chatham, and seven miles off the Air Station. It was a hazy day and the official belief is that the enemy did not know how near the shore was.

An alarm was flashed to the Chatham Naval Air Station. In eight minutes after the order for combat was given at the hangar, Seaplane H. S. L. 1695, commanded by Ensign Eric Lingard of Annisquam, had taken the air, was on the scene and circling for a counter attack. Lingard came down out of the dense haze and surprised the U-Boat, which hurriedly submerged, then came "awash" again and opened fire.

In order to make a sure hit Lingard flew his plane within 400 feet of the U-Boat. He flew straight into the enemy's gun fire, with the knowledge that he faced certain death from the explosion of his own bomb at that low altitude.

His bomb dropped true within a few feet of the Submarine but it failed to explode. And his plane only carried one bomb.

As the official report reads: "If the bomb had functioned the submarine would have been done for."

After he had spent his ammunition, Lingard stayed, and circled over the U-boat at a low altitude as a decoy, in order to keep her firing at him and therefore "awash" until the arrival of Capt. Eaton of the Chatham Naval Air Station, whose courage and skill were equally hampered by the fact that the bombs were "duds."

The following official statement was made by the Executive Officer of the Chatham Air Station:

"The enemy was attacked and driven away and never again appeared so near the shores of the United States. It is reasonably certain that had the U-Boat not been attacked from the air, she would have destroyed Chatham and Orleans (both towns less than four miles away) not because of any possible military value, but for the decided moral effect that such destruction would have had."—Just as the English coast-towns were shelled.

At the request of the city of Gloucester represented by the City Council and the Park Commission, the plane, which was the earliest type of naval plane ever equipped with a Liberty motor, has been turned over to the authorities of this city as an historical relic.

FIRST AIRCRAFT TO DEFEND AMERICAN SOIL

Historic Hull of Seaplane H. S. 1 L. 1695, Piloted by Ensign Eric Lingard in the Only Conflict of the War on This Side of the Atlantic. Granted to the City of Gloucester by the Navy Department "To Be Preserved as an Historic Relic of the War."

Secretary of the Navy Daniels, in a letter to Congressman Lufkin, who was active in securing the plane, expressed the hope that it would be placed permanently in some prominent place.

At a meeting of the officers of Post 3 of The American Legion, under the leadership of Colonel A. Piatt Andrew,—on the first anniversary of "The Battle of Chatham"—a resolution was unanimously adopted endorsing the proposition to place the Lingard seaplane in a suitable location at Stage Fort park in memory of a gallant brother officer.

Lingard was often wrecked far out at sea. On Sept. 27, while searching for a lost aviator, he and his crew were forced down in a storm. They were rescued "in a sinking condition," and taken to New York by a Quebec steamer.

Extract from Officers' Fitness Report Sept. 30, 1918.

"Very high sea running. Picked up by S. S. Parima after four hours. Lingard swam from Parima to wrecked flying boat with line through heavy sea. Made line fast around engine. Liberty motor saved through his efforts.

"Recommend that he be promoted to next higher rank."

(Signed) P. B. EATON, Commanding.

This promotion never reached him. Ten days later, in response to an S. O. S. from a steamer reporting U-boat attack, he volunteered. Wind blowing 40 miles, when his plane was forced down with engine trouble. This time he tossed for 27 hours clinging to the wing of his battered plane and holding his unconscious companion on by main force. This long exposure in the icy October water resulted in death.

Franklin D. Roosevelt—then Acting Secretary of The Navy—wrote of Lingard that he "Lived up to the best traditions of The Navy, and I cannot speak too highly of his gallant work."

HOW THE AIR PATROL WAS REGARDED BY COASTWISE SHIPPING

Statement March, 1919, by Captain Charles M. Gladwin of the S. S. Parima, Quebec Line, who picked up Ensign Lingard, after his plane had been wrecked, and landed him in New York.

"It was the fear of the sea-planes that kept the Germans away and made coastwise shipping possible. If we had not had them, the Germans would have made a clean sweep of the coast. About two weeks before the Chatham U-boat attack the Routing Officer at St. Thomas, in the Virgin Islands, warned me about what was going to happen. He said, 'Look out for U-boats, as the probability is that they will start somewhere near Cape Cod and make a clean sweep down the coast.' And they would have done it too, if they hadn't been met and driven away at their first attack which was off Chatham.

"I made nine round trips to South America during the last year and as I got up along these waters, I used to be mighty glad to hear the humm of those planes coming. There was hardly an hour of the day when we wouldn't see the airplanes hovering around, and we used to see them far out to sea. I have heard several Merchant Marine skippers say the same thing.

"It was just by a shake of luck that we picked up Ensign Lingard's wrecked seaplane. We were on return from New Brunswick and as we passed Nantucket Lightship, the setting sun struck the sinking plane which was tilted at an angle in the waves.

"The regulations for Merchant Marine were at that time very strict:—that a vessel should not stop for any purpose whatsoever; not to give help no matter what the conditions of distress, and not even to rescue crews or passengers in open boats, where a ship had been sunk, because this would just give the rescuing ship to the torpedo of the U-boat as one more victim.

"We had got a wireless that same morning from St. John's that a U-boat was operating off the vicinity of Cape Cod, but just the same we decided that if this was really a sea-plane we would stop and pick her up, as we had a great admiration for the U. S. Air Patrol and considered them our main protection."

This action on the part of the Captain of the Parima in saving the aviators at the risk of his own vessel and against "regulations" is more eloquent than any words of praise to show how efficient the Air Patrol was considered by coast-wise skippers.

TO MY LADY IN SEARCH OF THE DISTINCTIVE

A SHORT SMOOTH MOTOR TRIP TO THE SHOPS OF MAGNOLIA

Guests are numerous at Magnolia, and as the height of the season approaches dinner parties, luncheons and teas keep the summer hostess busy.

Mr. B. Lord Buckley of New York City, who has spent the past week in New York City, who has spent the past week as the house guest of the Eugene Fosters at "Crown Cliff," returned to New York on Tuesday. Mr. Buckley is an enthusiastic golfer and enjoyed many rounds at the Essex County Club during his stay.

Miss Albina Fennely of Haverhill is among the most popular girls at Hotel Oceanside. Miss Fennely was hostess at a marshmallow toast on Crescent Beach recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rehn who have been spending July at Hotel Oceanside will leave for the Thousand Islands the first of the week.

Mrs. Amelia Scudder who has been spending the summer at her cottage on Shore Road has as her guest, Mrs. John Overall and three children of St. Louis.

Miss Francis Gibson of Beacon street, Boston, is the guest of the Misses Marjorie and Marion Dakin at their Fuller street home. Miss Gibson who is a cousin of Charles Dana Gibson possesses considerable artistic ability and will study in Paris the coming winter.

The Misses Elizabeth and Edith Scammon of 270 Commonwealth avenue, motored to Magnolia for a short stay the first of the week. The Misses Scammon were formerly guests at Hotel Hesperus. They are spending the summer at the Hotel Wentworth, New Castle, N. H.

Miss E. C. McVickar of Providence who this season is occupying the Thornberg cottage, on Norman avenue, has as her guests the Reverend and Mrs. F. H. Decker and the Misses Hussey of Providence.

On account of illness Miss Lilian Freeman Clark will not occupy her Coolidge Point residence this season. Miss Clark, a daughter of the late Rev. James Freeman Clark, one of the founders of Unitarianism in Boston was among the first settlers on the Point.

Mrs. Robert B. Williams was called to Boston the past week on account of the death of her sister, Miss Henrietta Pierce of Dorchester. Miss Pierce, who was 83 years old, has been most active in philanthropic circles of the city during her life and will be greatly missed by the many charitable organizations with which she was connected. She was a sister of the late S. S. Pierce of Boston, and is survived by Dr. Vassar Pierce of Milton and Mrs. Robert B. Williams of Magnolia and Roxbury.

Yesterday evening a most enjoyable concert by the Salem Cadet Band was given at the North Shore Swimming Pool. A large number from the summer colony were present. Another concert will be given later in the season.

Mr. Chester Guild of Newton joined Mrs. Guild and their daughter, Mary Chester at the Hotel Oceanside recently. Mrs. Guild's older daughter, Mrs. Mahlon Bryan of Philadelphia, will visit her parents later in the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Harlow who are season's guests at Hotel Oceanside, had as their guests the F. I. Merriks of Pittsburgh over the recent week end.

Miss Ethel Morse, a former popular member of the younger set at the hotel, is spending the summer on a ranch in the far West. Miss Morse's engagement to Candler Bowditch of Brookline, was announced a year ago.

The bridge parties at the North Shore Swimming Pool continue popular and each week tables are engaged to the capacity of the large living room of the club house.

Mrs. Luther Smith of St. Louis, Mrs. W. R. Emerson of Boston and Mrs. Harry Ayer of Newton, were among those who entertained their friends at bridge the past week.

Mrs. Nathan Emery Coffin who motored from Des Moines to Magnolia the early part of June has as her guests at the Lyceum cottage, Norman Road, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot Harbach, Miss Harbach and Miss Harriet Harbach of Chicago.

The Edna Ferguson Tea House on Norman Avenue, has many house guests, including Mr. Harkness, Albany; Miss Mehany, Mrs. W. J. Ferguson, Toronto, Miss Katharine Fisher, Columbia University, N. Y., and Mr. Finney of New York City, who is the guest of Bryant Baker, the

THE PIRATE PARTY AT "SEVEN ACRES"

By John Doe, Jr.

A few days ago an unusual party took place at "Seven Acres," in Annisquam. The youngest, and therefore smartest, set of the neighborhood was invited "to board the 'Jolly Roger' at four o'clock promptly." Imagine the surprise of the young pirates when they assembled and saw a sloop moored at the sea-wall and their still greater astonishment when they saw stealing from her hatchway a heathen Chinnee, dressed in brilliant green pajamas, shuffling slippers and a long pig-tail! This pagan proceeded to set a small table for afternoon tea—a strange event aboard a pirate sloop, indicating passengers, perhaps ladies of high degree! Then the green man sounded a bell forward and lo! two Princesses of the Orient appeared, dressed in more than Oriental splendor, and calmly began to sip their tea, unconscious that the Chink was stealing toward the gong again, which presently burst forth in wild clangor. And yet they noticed nothing, even when, at this sign, a string of the most villainous pirates grease-paint ever created, stole silently over the stern of the boat and slunk in single file behind the hatch-way aft. Their leader, a man dressed in black with a shocking white face and a long, still oozing wound that prolonged his mouth into a twisted leer, motioned with his iron claw to an underling, who ran and hoisted the skull and crossbones. At this horrid signal the pirates attacked, screaming foul oaths, and bound the Princesses with ropes furnished by the treacherous Chinaman. Just as they were about to make away with them in approved blood-curdling style, on rushed the gallant guests, led by Peter Pan, who had happened by in the nick of time. The pirates, after a desperate fight, were routed and sent flying overboard. The princesses, on being released, said that much treasure had been secreted in various parts of the ship, and so a busy day ended in a search that brought to light much sunken gold—or if not sunken gold, things quite as good.

PLEASANT MOTOR JAUNT

Two Hours Ride Through Delightful Essex Countryside

One of the most attractive motor trips in which tourists and summer visitors delight, is that to quaint old Ipswich via the Essex Woods and the historic town of Essex, the birthplace of Rufus Choate.

Leaving Manchester-by-the-Sea the road circles the Essex County Club and the motorist soon enters the pine clad hills of the Essex Woods which were reserved for the towns of Essex and Manchester long years ago. The road winding in and out among the miniature foot hills on one side and valleys on the other, soon brings one out of the woods and one finds oneself suddenly in a typical New England farming country, with broad meadows, fragrant hayfields and occasional farm houses dotting the landscape.

The town of Essex, with its famous clams for sale by the roadside, its ship building industry and interesting relics of the early years of New England, makes the trip in itself well worth while.

From Essex to Ipswich, the road, which has been recently rebuilt, passes over slightly rolling country and one catches glimpses of Ipswich Bay and the sand dunes along the way.

At the fork known as "Parting Paths" one meets the Old Bay Road, built in 1660, which leads to the town commons and Ipswich.

The return trip made on the Old Bay Road, via the Myopia Hunt Club at Hamilton and the Gladioli farm at North Beverly, later skirting the shore through Beverly Farms, Prides, and West Manchester brings one again to Manchester and the trip is completed, which for beauty and interest is unsurpassed in this part of New England.

JANET'S GARDEN

Is it the French cakes or the American home bread or the charming French atmosphere which is drawing the World to Janet's Garden in Gloucester?

There were a great number of parties given there this week among them one at which Miss McKay, the president of Sweet Briar College, Virginia, entertained a company of Southern notables and another smaller one which Mrs. Nathaniel Baker gave for her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Roger Baker of Wellesley.

There was a tea party given this week by the Horace Maxwells of St. Louis.

Mr. Raymond Havens came over expressly to inspect some rare Russian icons which Mrs. John S. Lee brought over from Russia.

CONCERNING THE NEW LEGION BUILDING

The engraving shown on page 6 is the architect's sketch of the building as it will appear when remodeled. It was originally built in 1844 as the first Town House and, on the erection of a new Town Hall in 1869, was given over for school purposes. Recently the authorities presented the building to the Legion for a permanent home.

The architect, Ezra L. Phillips of this city who served actively in Y. M. C. A. work in France, has preserved the Greco-Colonial architecture and added a Colonial tower and facade to the Middle Street side to correspond with that on Washington Street.

When completed, it will be one of the finest semi-public structures in the city. The work of remodelling will be commenced immediately. Beside reception, lounging, billiard and other rooms, it will have an auditorium seating 600 with a stage. Around the walls cases will be placed containing articles of historic interest and also tablets containing the names of all who have served in any war, from the earliest Colonial times.

In connection with the Joan of Arc statue it will form a notable memorial group which will appeal to the lovers of the beautiful and the appropriate.

In last week's issue, The CAPE ANN SHORE published the picture of the statue of Joan of Arc by Anna Vaughn Hyatt, which will be reproduced and placed in the square in front of these headquarters.

The whole will constitute an evidence of the unflagging zeal and devotion of Col. A. Piatt Andrew, Commander of the Post, who conceived the idea and directed the drive for the funds which made the home and memorial possible.

The history of the edifice is interesting. In the early part of the nineteenth century there was great rivalry between the Sandy Bay section, now Rockport, and Gloucester proper, which led to a separation of the former and its establishment as a separate municipality under the head of Rockport.

The Rockport group, ambitious to have the first town house, purchased the requisite lumber and other material. Unfortunately, as has often happened elsewhere, the citizens could not agree on a site, so in town meeting assembled, they voted to sell all the material and it was bought by an individual who disposed of it to the Gloucester group which erected it on its present site.

BASS ROCKS

MAITERS social are decidedly quiet, all along the line of the North Shore. Last summer, it was said that people, restrained by the sobering influence of the war, were inclined to let down the bars and go the limit on the road to enjoyment.

This year the contrary is the fact. People were never more quiet. A round of golf, a set of tennis, the Saturday night dance seems to fill the bill.

Mrs. Mary Abascal of Los Angeles is occupying the Swinson cottage.

Charles S. Alves and family of Kansas City have taken occupancy of the Collins house.

The Lester Roberts house at Bass Rocks is taken this season by Mrs. Catherine Youstron of St. Augustine.

The E. H. Brainards of Pittsburg who have been coming to Magnolia for a number of seasons are established in the Mansion house.

Charles B. King and family of New York have the Terry cottage.

Charles K. Cobb and family have the Souther villa for the season.

M. H. Costello and family of Lowell are established in the Reardon cottage for the season.

Max Raphael and family of Boston are domiciled in the Wonson cottage.

General regret is felt in this part of the North Shore Colony over the absence of the Siamese Embassy and the secretary Mr. Edward Loftus and Mrs. Loftus, who have always been prominent in the social life of this section.

The Ambassador is Phya Prabha Karawongse and he, with Lady Karawongse, have occupied a cottage here since their assignment to this country.

With them is an interesting group of young attaches, who are active in the athletic life of the colony and especially keen for tennis, at which they are expert. It is understood that affairs of state are detaining the Embassy at Washington. They expect to return here next month.

Mrs. Hodge and Mrs. Belser were the winners in the ladies two ball foursome at the Bass Rocks golf club, Tuesday afternoon.

Tuesday Mrs. Burton had two tables at bridge at the club house and Thursday Miss Neff had two tables of bridge and ten for tea. On the same day Mrs. Allen Farmer entertained a party of six tables of bridge and 24 at tea.

ROCKPORT

The Sterling Poole family of Lynn are at their summer home, Dock square.

The C. A. Corey family of Boston are occupying the Small cottage on Sandaba avenue.

Dr. T. J. O'Connor, Dr. Joseph S. O'Connor and sister, Miss Eliza J. O'Connor and Miss Grace M. Coakley of Worcester, have opened their summer home, Kin-kora, on the front beach for the season.

A. S. Pevear and family of Cambridge are occupying their summer cottage on Sandaba avenue.

P. H. Wilkins and family have arrived from Malden and are occupying the L. E. Smith cottage, Marmion Way.

The J. L. Bogerts of Waltham, who were in the Logan cottage, Land's End, last summer, have returned again for this season, and are domiciled in the same cottage.

Ensign Leland Poole of the U. S. Navy, and family, are occupying Captain John Breen's "Shamrock" cottage, Clark ave.

The M. H. Smiths of Newton are occupying the Frazier cottage.

C. F. Coombs and family of Boston are occupying their newly purchased summer home on the Headlands.

The Robinsons and McLeans of Belmont are at their summer cottage on the Headlands for the season.

Henry F. Keyes and family of Brookline are domiciled in Frank E. Elwell's residence, Mt. Pleasant place, for the summer.

William Ingle of Baltimore, Maryland, has leased Uppercliff for the season. He has leased Uppercliff for the season.

J. Albert Davis and family of Amesbury are occupying J. Sidney Poole's bungalow on Atlantic avenue, this summer.

The Misses Bessie, Charlotte and Alice Hurlburt of Hartford, Conn., are at their cottage, formerly the William Mair summer home, on the Headlands.

Rev. Alfred Skinner and family of Boston are at their summer home at Land's End.

Rev. William S. Packer and family of Winchester are occupying their cottage at Land's End for the summer.

The Elliot Frosts of Waltham are spending the summer at their cottage at Land's End.

Benjamin A. Worcester and family of Waltham have arrived at their summer home at Land's End for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Babbitt are at their summer home on the west side of South street, Land's End.

The William Areys of Salem are at their cottage next south of Turk's Head Inn.

The Francis E. Smiths of Boston are at their summer home on Eden Road for the season.

Edgar Norwood and family of Medford Hillside have arrived at their bungalow on Mill Lane for the season.

A fetching party from Cambridge staying at the Rockport Lodge includes Bertha Fegand, Ellen Doyle, Mae Haley, Belle Morin, Alice Doyle and Mabel Walbern. Miss Eliza Dickey of 383 Howard street, Cambridge, being the hostess.

COMMUNITY THEATRE

younger people go away from year to year to college or to work. It contains a loyal nucleus, however, and several of its members who entered it to play juvenile parts have passed by easy stages into romantic lovers and young married people and now impersonate and sometimes actually are the elderly fathers and mothers of the new members. Of this loyal group is Mr. Arthur Bragdon, who beside being a popular star has also designed and painted all the club scenery, assisted in its construction by other members.

The object of the new club, if a club that started in 1875 may be called new, is the same as the original organization, a help to some one of the community interests including the church. The custom is to give two groups of plays each winter, repeating the best one in the summer when the summer colony also co-operates as audience.

Finding this highly developed community spirit in Annisquam, Miss Annette Rogers, a few years ago, purchased the building originally built for a Baptist Church which did not apparently thrive in this free thinking settlement, and gave it to the village. Thus Annisquam came to possess a Community Center and here all the entertainments, concerts and lectures are held. This gift gave a fillip to other Community interests and among others the Annisquam Band. This again was not created but revived, for the band was a feature of the community performance of 1863. One-half of all the Dramatic Club proceeds is now devoted to the Village Hall Association as in the case of the play "Bachelor Hall" given Thursday and Friday evenings.

Jack Hooper Sails Tern to Victory in Saturday's Race.
Kittiwake Also Wins.

Jack Hooper in the Tern displaying good seamanship sailed across the line first in the Bird class in the Annisquam race Saturday afternoon. The wind was moderate from the west, somewhat fluky, with a choppy sea. The Tern had the best of the start, holding it on the run to Plum Cove with the Auk and Merle following.

On the beat to Essex, the Mavis and Auk went to starboard in shore, while the Tern, Merle and Broiler stood to port into the bay, the result being that the Tern turned the buoy three minutes ahead of the Merle, the Broiler following two minutes after, the offshore boats having benefited by the stronger wind in the bay.

It was a run home to the Channel buoy. At the latter point the wind backed to the southward, giving a beat up the river, the Tern steadily increasing her lead to the finish.

In the Cat class the Kittiwake got the best of the start, with the Puss in Boots the runner up, and thereafter it was a procession of the two over the entire course. The Copycat, Meow and Catnip went inshore at Plum Cove and were becalmed 10 minutes while the boats that went offshore wind hunting were favored with a moderate breeze. The Bow Wow had a runaway of it in the Dog class. The summary:

SUNDAY'S RACING

There being no scheduled race on for Sunday afternoon, an informal race was improvised in the Bird class, there being four contenders, the Tern sailed by Jack Hooper; the Coot by R. Russell Smith; the Auk by Harry Guild and the Canvasback by Mr. Harrison. A fresh northwest wind prevailed insuring action all the way.

The Tern got away in the lead and maintained that position on the windward work to Essex, the Coot being right at her heels the other two about two minutes behind. Shortly after rounding, the Tern carried away one of her sail blocks and while repairing damages the Coot slipped into the lead which she maintained although close pressed by the Tern which finished about a minute behind the Auk and Canvasback being some two minutes astern. No time was taken.

SATURDAY MORNING'S RACE

Saturday morning, the race which was not finished July 17, because of lack of wind, was sailed, a strong and puffy northwest wind prevailing.

The Kittiwake got the best of the start the Meow being handicapped fully three minutes. A reef had been taken in her sail but just at the gunfire her skipper decided to shake out the spare canvass which caused the handicap.

Meantime the Kittiwake and Catnip were having it out for first place and before the run to Plum Cove was finished the Catnip had gone into the lead, Kittiwake rounding second, Catenary third, boats all well bunched.

On the windward work Russell Smith, sternmost boat in the Meow, hugged the shore while the others stood out more into the bay, he gaining thereby catching up with the leaders and finishing strong ousting the Kittiwake from second place and making a Garrison finish, being beaten by just one second by Don Jelly in the Catnip. THE ROCKPORT SHORE

OCKPORT is more and more becoming the home of the summer cottager. There is something fascinating to the outsider in this unchanged New England seaport and its hospitable people.

Much property has changed ownership during the past year but in common with many other communities, little new construction is being undertaken.

In fact the "summer cottage" has come to mean in many cases a nine months residence and under present conditions summer home seekers are finding the purchase of the village houses, rather than strictly shore property, a desirable investment. Rockport has some of these good old homesteads and some are passing into the hands of people who will preserve and accentuate their charm.

Mrs. Harry Vincent who is spending her second season on Bearskin Neck where her husband has found a fruitful field for his brush is erecting a nicely planned cottage on Atlantic avenue.

Frank E. Davis Company Plant at Gloucester

Summer Folks Along the North Shore:

YOU are within a short motoring distance of one of the most interesting places in this section of the country. The plant of the Frank E. Davis Company, well known to thousands of families as mail-order dealers in quality fish, is located at 93 Rogers Street, Gloucester, where you may see the interesting phases of the fish business. Hundreds annually avail themselves of this privilege. You are cordially invited to do the same. As you've read the advertisements of this concern in your favorite magazine, undoubtedly you've said at one time or another "Some day when I'm near there I'm going to see that Davis Company". Here, then, is your opportunity. The "latch string" is always out.

Like the idle rain of summer sped the harm-

With a laugh of fierce derision once again the phantoms fled
Once again without a shadow on the sands the moonlight lay
And the white smoke curling through it drifted slowly down the bay!

THE PRATTLER

Friends of Miss Ruth Haass at Hotel Rockaway, Rocky Neck, were not surprised to see a most attractive diamond ring on her engagement finger when she arrived from Chicago, early in the month.

Miss Haass, who with her mother, Mrs. K. W. Haass, sister, Miss Margaret Haass and Grandmother, Mrs. Isaac Lombard, has spent a number of summers at the Oceanside Hotel, Magnolia, Thorwald, Bass Rocks and the Rockaway, is well known among the Cape Ann summer colony.

Her fiance, Edward Dunn of Worcester and East Orange, N. J., who was a member of the aviation corps in France, will be her guest the first part of August at Hotel Rockaway.

The marriage will take place sometime during the midwinter season at her home on Kenwood avenue, Chicago.

Mrs. Sidney Cloman, wife of Col. Cloman, who served in the World War, motored from York Harbor, Tuesday, to Lookout hill where she has been the guest of Mrs. John Hays Hammond during the week.

Guests at Hotel Oceanside include Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Bratle, Rose Bratle, M. Bratle, Philadelphia; Mrs. Edwin Johnson, Mrs. Louis Gholstin, Atlanta; Mrs. Norman Cantrell, Philadelphia; Mrs. C. C. Bliss, Miss B. Kinne, Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Willis Fowler, New York, Miss Francis Dixon, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Courtland Griffin, Springfield; Mrs. E. L. Root, Grosse Point, Mich.; Mrs. R. T. McKeever, Mrs. W. F. Noe, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bauer, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. W. F. McCauley, Savannah; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Sweet, Providence; Mrs. A. W. Simpson, Miss A. H. Simpson, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Fowler, Providence; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Berquist, New York City; P. R. Mabury, Miss Betty Mabury, Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Stratford Watson, Toronto; Mrs. George P. Slade, New York; Col. A. H. Royce, Boston; Mrs. B. K. DANIEL LOW & COMPANY

Invites You to Historic Salem

WLD Salem with its stately houses, old fashioned gardens, and its wealth of other Colonial charms offers you a hearty welcome.

OUR Retail Store is located in Town House Square in the very heart of Salem, where once stood the Town Pump made famous by Hawthorne. Nearby are many of the points of historic interest.

WHETHER your stay on the North Shore is for a day, a week, or for all summer, we know you can spend part of your time pleasantly and profitably in our Store.

YOU will find it a place to delight your heart, with its spirit of hospitality and its wide variety of interesting and unusual wares—at the most unexpectedly moderate prices.

WE want you to consider this a personal invitation to visit our Store as often as you have the desire, and to make it your headquarters when shopping or sight-seeing in Salem. Come in and look around in a leisurely fashion; our clerks are expected to serve you, but not to disturb you in the least if you wish merely to look around or to meet a friend or wait for a car. Our Store is a Salem institution, dedicated to your service.
